Meet our Head Chef, Ves Seng

Chef Ves Seng brings a deeply personal approach to the autumn menu, shaped by his Thai upbringing and Cambodian and Chinese heritage. These cultures form the backbone of his cooking, influencing the flavours, techniques and traditions that continue to guide him in the kitchen today.

For Ves, cooking has always been more than a profession. Despite the long hours and intensity of modern kitchens, his passion for food has never wavered. It's a lifelong commitment to craft, creativity and continual learning — one driven by purpose rather than pressure.

At the heart of Ves's philosophy is honest cooking built on quality ingredients. He focuses on fresh, seasonal produce, allowing each element to shine through simplicity and balance. Working with locally abundant ingredients is essential to his approach, and he enjoys blending the flavours of his heritage with modern Australian produce to create dishes that feel both nostalgic and new.

With a background in fine dining, Ves brings a disciplined attention to detail, flavour balance and presentation. He is constantly exploring new ideas and techniques, always with the goal of creating food that feels welcoming, comforting and memorable.

As the seasons shift and diners seek meals that are lighter, fresher and more thoughtful, Ves's autumn dishes reflect a commitment to nourishment as much as enjoyment. For him, cooking is about balance — flavour, health, culture and creativity coming together to create an experience that lingers long after the final bite.
